Q What is Specialized Residential?

A ROI's services have grown throughout the years, but our original service is still at the core of what we do: providing group homes for adults with disabilities. Our licensed homes are designed to help adults with developmental, mental, or physical disabilities live in beautiful home settings, in a safe neighborhood where they can enjoy the community and receive assistance in day-to-day needs. Whether we are coordinating medical appointments, teaching an individual new skills, or providing transportation to a ball game, we are here to serve.

Q Whom do We Serve?

A Men and women served in our licensed settings are typically over the age of 18. However, in group homes we can serve someone as young as 16, with specific approval from the state. The typical individual we serve is someone who benefits from the structure and personal support that a licensed setting provides. It is someone who needs staff support for their safety and health. The individual has not been able to function on his/her own for any substantial amount of time without the presence, supervision, or intervention of staff, and likely requires some amount of hands-on assistance for personal care: such as bathing, shaving, tooth brushing, and eating. They may have some degree of medical needs which require the ongoing support of staff to assist with documentation, follow-up, implementation of orders, or participation in medical appointments. Individuals in these settings may utilize wheelchairs for mobility. Most of the individuals living in such settings have a court appointed guardian and an intellectual and developmental disability diagnosis, but some also have a mental illness diagnosis.
